

Jillian Howe

LEAF senior Jillian Howe plans to take a gap year next year and then go to college. She is considering careers as a marine biologist, restaurant owner, or doctor. Humanities teacher Chris Becker describes Jillian as “curious and open to new ideas and that will take her far in life.”

Jillian says that “all of the teachers at LEAF have made a difference for her because of their kindness and individuality.” She enjoyed humanities classes the most “because the curriculum is the most interesting.”

Jillian offers the following advice to incoming LEAF students: “Be kind to yourself. LEAF is great because it offers education diversity and a creative environment.”
